

Business News – Week of July 31, 2017

Successful business leaders and CEOs read voraciously to stay up-to-date with their industries and business trends.

Warren Buffett, one of the richest men in the world and a successful CEO, estimates that he spends 80% of his time reading. Buffett has said that every morning he reads the Wall Street Journal, the Financial Times, the New York Times, USA Today, the Omaha World-Herald, and the American Banker.

Bill Gates reads the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, and the Economist cover to cover.

On that note, Knowledge Matters, makers of Virtual Business, has compiled this list of headlines and links to some of the most important business headlines of the week.

Tesla's Model 3 Is Here, And It's Much More Than An Electric Car – Wired

You've Never Heard of HNA Group. Here's Why You Will. – Fortune

AI Is Inventing Language Humans Can't Understand. Should We Stop It? – Fast Company

Discovery Communications Agrees To Buy Scripps Networks – Wall Street Journal

Hot Spot For Tech Outsourcing: The United States – New York Times