

Business News – September 11, 2017

Successful business leaders and CEOs read voraciously to stay up-to-date with their industries and business trends.

Warren Buffett, one of the richest men in the world and a successful CEO, estimates that he spends 80% of his time reading. Buffett has said that every morning he reads the Wall Street Journal, the Financial Times, the New York Times, USA Today, the Omaha World-Herald, and the American Banker.

Bill Gates reads the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, and the Economist cover to cover.

On that note, Knowledge Matters, makers of Virtual Business, has compiled this list of headlines and links to some of the most important business headlines of the week.

6 'Change the World' Companies That Are Rising Stars - Fortune

Amazon's Whole Foods Price Cuts Brought 25% Jump in Shoppers – Bloomberg

This 24-year-old used Snapchat to launch a startup so successful, he turned down jobs at Facebook and Uber — all while fighting cancer – Business Insider

How JPMorgan Chase Is Fueling Detroit's Revival - Fortune